NLWSPAPLKAACHIVE®

When Mr. Pennoyer was a candidate for the governorship he was supported with great enthusiasm by many working men. In his election they fintered themselves that they had a brantse of all the ald that could justify be rendered by the executive of the sixes. Here in Portland their disappointment is extreme. The governor has vatued the two creat measures governor has webod the two great measures that would have opened the way to employment of large numbers of working nen. As to the bridge bill especially, their disappointment is great. Here is a measure which public opinion unenimously supports as necessary for the public welfare. The working men felt that they had a right to expect the governor to approve it. But instead of doing as he had eatled. prove it. But instead of doing so be has gotten off in a declamatory way; some ideas concerning bridges, twenty or thirty years hebridd the times, and has thrown a sentimental sop to the poor man in the form of a suggestion that the said poor man ought to have free passage over a bridge that his excellency will not permit to be a decisive vote over the veto, and we trust the home will do the like thing to-day. This a measure whose importance estant in the least to exaggerated, since it is the introductory step to a new era of activity for Oregon.

The fact that there is no railway bridge at Portland is a heavy charge upon a large part of the business of the Korthwest. For want of al bridge traffic is taxed heavily, and is to an extent of the state of the sta tent obstructed and embargoed. It costs ten dollars to get each car load of the country's pro-duce across the river, and the producer has to ero Oregon the same charge has to be paid. Beery car load of hides, hops, fish and wool that has to cross the river bears the like burden, as does every car load of lumber; and every car load of lumber; and every car load of goods from the East likewise has to bear it. For traffic, then, the railroad bridge is an lumber.

urgant necessity to the state, and nearly all the reopie of the state are directly intercested in it. For revival of industry it is likewise a neces-sity. It will set at work a vast number of men; quantities; it will open the way to impro of the terminal grounds and to erection of depot buildings; it will fulfill one of the conditions upon which consolidation of the O. B. & N. and the Oregon Short Line depends. All this opens a prospect of renewed activity and life for the

that has followed his veto message. His anxiety lest breparable injury should be done to propi test are much sould be done to property, so the tree above the proposed bridge is not shared by a single owner of that property, so shared by a single owner of that property, so self, but not the danger, since no such danger as his jeremiad would indicate, exists. Every argument for the bridge is cumulative, and no argument against it remains. It may be hoped that the house will see its duty its the state as the senate has done, and nullify the veto by de-

OF CREDITS WHO PAYS

Portland morning dallies is already putting in a plea for the purchasers of the purposed bends for the Bull Run water works. It says they should not be taxed. Oh, not hey should not be taxed. The purposed not be taxed to be provided in the publisher. The provided in the publisher. the capitalists. The poor people should pay the This is only another illustration of a vary common phase of studidity. The boul-holders, if the bonds were taxed, would not in fact pay any tax, nor could any means be devised of making them pay it. The tax would simply be a burden upon the credit of the city. By just as much as the taxes might be estimated at during the period the bonds were up run, by just so much less would the bonds sell for. Thu, Portland's five per cent. bonds, recently sold, brought 108. That is, bonds to the amount of $500,900 brought to the city $540,000 cash. But if these bonds had been taxable they would hardly have prought over 70 cents on the dollar, perhaps not over 60 cents; and instead of a total of $540,000, the city would have received for its half million of bonds, say $300,000, or $350,000. at most Or, if bonds were wanted that, would sell at par, subject to taxnition; it would have been necessary to raise the rate of interest from 5 per cent. to 7 or 8 per cent.

It is worth while to pursue this subject a littie, inasmuch as it affords an illustration where the tax, and he always pays something more than the tax, since the lender holds up the rate of interest high enough to cover ni possible of its uptaxable water busis.

they have actually produced, it would be masses. I to make up by higher water mates; that is, the tax would have to be paid 1 fit the water concerner, at of the burnious of it would fall upon the poor, since they are by for tipe good name:

where to sup it itself with yater, rests uponthe known fact that consumption of water bythe people will be a steady and increasing thing; that water must be had; that since water is indispensable people will pay for it before they will pay for anything cise, and that the multitude of consumers will always assure a revenue. This makes a credit for obtaining a water supply for a city. Those who are called the poor furnish the greater part of this credit; and those who are rich but a small part of it. and those who are rich but a small part of it. Now a proposition to tax the bonds diminishes that credit; that is, it presses chiefly upon the poor, who are thereby deprived of a portion of the benefits, in cleapest possible water rates, which their credit as water consumers ought to that would command the bondholders to pay the iax would simply take the tax out of the water consumer. And likewise the law that commands the lender to pay tax on notes or mortgages held by him, as inevitably takes the tax out of the borrower; and it takes even more, because the lender, to guard against possibilities, will exact a rate of interest high enough to make him a net return for his money, pay the ordinary taxes and provide against extraordi-pary taxation. Abandonment of u try lax and of all efforts to tax credits will bring benefits to the people at large, and to none so much water sch me; but since we have for the pres-ent an adequate supp y of water, there need to no regretabout it. But the main argument of the veto was but on wrong grounds. Since the legislature can saxupt from taxation property seed for municipal purposes it can exempt from taxation, the credit of a city. In fact the two things in such a case are one and the seare,

Public credit, in any form, is not rightly a tayable thing. Whether employed for state, county, municipal or schoo: purposes, it always should be exempt, in order that it may yield the greatbe exempt, in order that it may yield the greatest possible benefits to the communities that amplied it and whose property it is. Let it always be borne in mind that when you tax a loan you don't tax the purchaser of the security or the bondboider, but the dredit on which the loan is based. And since manifelpal property may be exampt from taxation, municipal credit should also be exempt; for if the credit of a city isn't municipal property, what kind of property is it? So with a country, or with a school district. The whole system of taxing credits is a mistake, and that of taxing public credits is mistake, and that of laxing public credits is especially irrational. In time undoubtedly the people of Oregon wil be educated by observa-tion, experience and reflection out of a folly which in fact can prevail only in communities of conspicuous inexperience in affairs of improv

Under the law, as it stands at present, the homicidal feel who went through "the-didn't-know-it-was-loaded" act at Albina on Thursday afternoon, can not be hanged for murder, and more's the pits. I've the law ought to be put in form to meet such rases as 'this with a far severer punishment than it metes out now.

It was bis owd gun and he was going out to shoot ducay, but he "didn't know it was loaded," and he pointed it at the woman "in a playing mode to scare her." onlied the tripper and ful mood to scare her," pulled the trigger and she fell dead. And then he was so surprised thore. The deadly fool frequently tries the patience of communities in this way; but his case is not incurable. If the legislature will just enact a law declaring that every homicide of this kind shall be recished as morder, the hanging of a deadly fool or we will be a warning to all the penalty for raising a gun and pointing it at ac-other, and any hijury loss than death resulting from such act should be pun shed as a murder-ons arrault.

Though the legislature is approaching the end of its term, and there is little time for new business, it would be an excellent thing it it could give us in act to protect human life against the deadly fool, and to punish the deadly fool according to bis deserts.

In his testimony, lynch acknowledged the receipt of the verticus sums of money, and also of an achidional $1256 that a Mr. Murphy, had bet on the race, but claimed that Skurve told him to give all the money up to Shinner, as it was "fixed" between the foot recers, and it would be all right, that they intended to "wheak up?" Skinner to win the race. Lynch secondingly gave up all the money which to say the least was a queer way of dring things. After the race was run the referee decided that Struve had wun it, and Young, Struve and Millett made demands on Lynch for the money, which he was unable to hand over. Skinner's testimory brought to light a "tice kettle of fish," with was nothing less than a deliberate awingle. It seems that all the money he and his friends had was $560, and that as fast at the money let by the friends of Shave came in he took it sand doubled up, thus a rhushy making Struve's backers bet against their own money. It is manifestly of the uninost importance that statutes which, like the purson laws, should be liber ally applicationed to the pension laws, should be in pelast of which there is an advantage of this section of this bill. above given, it remails to me to be so uncentain and liable to such unjust and mischievous application, as to alone turnith sufficient ground for disapproving the proposed legislation. Persons seeking to obtain the pensions provided by this section must be now or hereafter. States, and by such that incomply specified with statements.

It is not probable that the words last quoted "Such total loadility to probure their subsistence by daily labor," in any war, qualifies the conditions provided to the preceding language of the section. The "notal inability;" spoken of must be such "hability," that is, the hability already described and constituted by the conditions stready cetalled in the previous lasts of the section. WHAT THE CONDITIONS MEAN.

It this becomes important to consider the meaning and scope of these last mentioned conditions.
